AGENDA:
Review Methodology for collecting information and populating documentation

- Review of Administer Care Plan use case
  - Care plan is essentially the contents of the patient 'chart'
  - It is not a document but more a nebulous set of actions and activities that are focused on addressing the health of the patient.
    - A treatment plan can be one of the items
  - Team member contribution: Administer Care Plan use case is essentially a treatment plan according to the way it is written up in the use case.
  - Discussion on what is a 'template' and whether that refers to the system interaction and how the caEHR would deal with templates.
  - It may be that the Business team defines care plan and treatment plan and therapy differently than the HL7 definition.
  - Sequence and Communication diagramming is necessary to get to the level of detail sufficient enough to bridge the gap between the functional requirements and the use cases.
    - Team will start to address this

- Review of Manage Treatment Plan Use Case
  - Post condition of 'Patient Begins Treatment' suggests that the use case is just to initiate the treatment plan and not manage it.
    - Thus it needs to be revisitied and corrected.

- Architecture team counts on the use cases more than the functional profile to build services.

☑ Team to try running the St Joseph's scenarios through a template that Marc is working up and sending proposed templates for business narratives and for Ucs, for the team to discuss and work through.
